Claiming the sum of $15,482, the First National Bank of Philadelphia, 15th and Walnut streets, Phila., has named John Hamilton, Lower Southampton township, the defendant in an action in assumpsit. The suit grows out of a promissory note transaction August 31, 1945.

The plaintiff avers that he delivered an ice cube maker to the premises of the defendants and has never been paid. One of the defendants, Anthony Spiewak, in an answer filed in the Prothonotary's Office, alleges that he never ordered or agreed to pay for the ice making machine.

A Quakertown wife, Hazel V. Weiss, 234 East Broad street, has named her husband, Albert G. Weiss, 1743 Madison avenue, Bethlehem, the respondent in a libel in divorce. They were married March 26 in Elkton, Md., and separated June 22, 1944.

GLEANED BY SCRIBES

John W. Weidemeyer, 30-year-old Perkasee greenhouse employee, helped to rescue his four-year-old daughter after they had been trapped in a flaming bedroom in the rear of their dwelling at Spring Mount on Wednesday.

Unable to go down the stairway because of flames and smoke that enveloped the burning home, Weidemeyer, a war veteran, led his daughter, Geraldine, through a window onto a rear porch roof and dropped her into the waiting arms of another occupant of the home, Francis Curren, 20.

Weidemeyer, employed by Oliver L. Nase, Perkasee, then climbed onto a limb of a tree extending to the roof and went down the tree to safety.

Four other occupants of the three-story frame dwelling were able to flee from the building in their night clothes. They were: Curren, who boarded at the home; Weidemeyer's wife, and Mr. and Mrs. S. Leshner, owners of the property.

Celebrating their ruby wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Selner, Doylestown, were married 49 years ago Thursday.

They were married by the Rev. Mr. Carmichael, Methodist pastor, and the bride described their wedding day as a "perfect and beautiful spring-like day."

Mr. and Mrs. Selner are residing in the same home they began house-keeping in 40 years ago. Mr. Selner has been employed at "Aldie," the estate of Mrs. William R. Mercer, near Doylestown, for 54 years.

Roy Geismann, who has served as teacher of vocational agriculture in Springfield high school, both before the war and since his return from the army, expects to leave the position on April 1, and take charge of the farming operations of Earl Risser, near Springtown.

The school board has procured a successor to Mr. Geismann, Stephen Wurn, Vineland, N. J., a graduate of Rutgers University, New Brunswick, N. J., and who served in the

DISCUSSES PROBLEMS CONFRONTING BANKERS

Lack of Credit Information Concerning Borrowers, and Saturday Closing

BRUMBAUGH SPEAKER

Declaring that there are two problems which are of great interest to bankers in this area, D. Emmert Brumbaugh, Secretary of Banking, Harrisburg, speaking at a meeting of the Bucks County Bank Management Committee, here, Monday evening, said:

"I refer, first, to the lack of credit information concerning your borrowers, and second, to Saturday closing. The first problem is one in which our department, as a supervisory agency, is vitally interested and we find after years of continual urging a number of bankers are still making sizable loans without obtaining financial statements and other credit data from the borrower."

"An honest borrower should have no hesitancy in revealing his full financial condition to the banker from whom he desires to obtain a loan."

Touching on the closing of the banks on Saturday, Mr. Brumbaugh said there are five different bills in the Legislature relative to Saturday closing.

"The solution of Saturday closing lies solely in the hands of the bankers themselves and the final decision must be made with regard to better public relations and better employee relations," said the banking official, who intends to remain on the "side lines" and permit the banking fraternity and legislature solve the problem.

Speaking on the bankers' duties to World War II veterans, Mr. Brumbaugh said he believed that bankers should be ready to make sound small loans to the little fellow and to advance consumer credit to the people of the community where circumstances warrant such extensions of credit.

"I have said previously that good, sound G. I. loans should be taken by our banks, I am convinced that the soundness of real estate loans to veterans will depend upon the honesty, integrity and conscientiousness of approved lenders and the appraisers approved and designated by the Veterans Administration."

Touching on the inflationary value of real estate, Mr. Brumbaugh pointed out that the price of farm land in Pennsylvania is 57 per cent higher today than it was in 1939.

Discussing an economic recession, he said: "I have read a number of articles by many leading men in the construction field who predict a break in residential real estate values by summer or early fall. The gist of their argument is that at the present prices new homes and recently constructed homes have been priced 'out of the market.'"

WHAT "BIPARTISAN" POLICY?

A piece of political trickery may have done more service to the American people than anything else which has happened during recent months.

The trick was the work of a new-comer in the Democratic National Committee, a young and handsome Chicago graduate of the Kelly-Nash school of gang politics who has come to be the white-haired boy of New Deal strategy—apparently with the full backing of President Truman. His name is Gael Sullivan.

Various factors have combined to raise Sullivan to the position of brain-truster for the Democrats. One of these is the decline in prestige of the Chairman, Robert E. Hannegan, who has gone into eclipse as a result of a long series of blunders, combined with uncertain health. Another is the immense admiration which the President appears to have of this self-assertive new-comer. A third is the assurance with which Sullivan has elbowed aside older and probably wiser heads in the Democratic high command.

The trick was that of writing a letter to Senator Vandenberg and Republican National Chairman Reece, demanding that they "sign up" to support the Truman program. This was a spot-putting move, wholly partisan in nature, designed to give the Republican spokesmen the hard choice of either surrendering to the President or laying themselves open to the charge of being "isolationists."

In the words of Arthur Krock, of the New York Times: "The Republicans would be put in a hole because, if Chairman Reece signed the manifesto drawn up by Mr. Sullivan—a two-party statement endorsing President Truman's new anti-Communist foreign policy—the Republicans would become the 'Me Too' party, despite their control of Congress."

Like many another "clever" stunt, this one backfired. Senator Vandenberg took the floor of the Senate to denounce it as unfair and as political in motive. Chairman Reece took the hide off Sullivan in a letter of reply. And Democratic leaders in Washington found themselves in the unhappy position of once again having to repudiate an act of their National Committee—something which has happened "again and again and again" during recent months.

But the matter goes beyond being merely the foolish and headstrong act of a half-baked political tyro trying to repeat the tricks of corrupt big-city Democratic gang politics on the national level.

Sullivan didn't quite succeed in putting the persons he was trying to trap "on the spot." But he put plenty of others there.

One of these is the President. The ambiguous role which Mr. Truman has been playing—"unity" in Congress, candidate for re-election elsewhere—is thrown into high relief. Once more friends of the President are caught trying to reap the political benefits of the so-called "bipartisan" foreign policy.

REGRET CLOSING OF MARITIME ACADEMY

Secretary Draemel

ONLY 45 CADETS NOW

MORRISVILLE, Mar. 22—News of the proposed abandonment of the Pennsylvania Maritime Academy is received with regret. Announcement was made yesterday that Secretary of Forests and Waters Milo F. Draemel had recommended to Governor Duff that the 59-year-old Academy on the Delaware River at Biles Creek here be closed by May 31st.

Draemel added the training service "duplicated a service now rendered by the Federal Maritime Commission."

The Academy, currently conducted on a federally loaned cargo vessel was sub-standard without a shore base which originally was impractical from the cost viewpoint, Draemel added.

The land facilities, estimated to cost $4 million now were valued at $6,500,000, he said.

Only a small fraction or $2 million appropriated for the construction by the General Assembly two years ago had been spent, Draemel

Croydon Man Held For Robbery at Store Here

George Smith, 26, of Elm avenue, Croydon, was held without bail this morning charged with burglary.

Smith was given a hearing before Justice of Peace Arthur P. Brady, and the witnesses were Sheridan B. Metz and Chief of Police Linford J. Jones.

Smith admitted the truthfulness of statements which he had signed for the police. In these statements he told of entering the Metz store, Farragut avenue, early yesterday morning. The loot taken consisted of several boxes of women's undergarments.

Smith was arrested at about 2:45 yesterday morning as Officers Sackville and Chance spotted him at Lincoln avenue and Pond street with boxes under his arms. He was taken to police headquarters and shortly before nine o'clock yesterday morning Metz reported that his place of business had been robbed.

Entrance was gained through a basement door on the side and through the basement Smith made his way to the first floor. Metz said that when he arrived at the store yesterday morning he noticed vacant shelves and then that some other boxes were missing. The front door had been tampered with and so had the cash register.

Smith pleaded guilty.

VALUE RECEIVED!

There is abundant food for thought in a passage from a letter on taxes sent by A. W. Robertson, chairman of the Westinghouse Electric Corporation, to all members of Congress.

"You will be astonished, as I was," writes Mr. Robertson, "that I paid thirty-seven times as much tax to the federal government as I paid to all other tax collectors (federal tax from 1942 through 1946—$746,716; all other taxes for the same period—$20,200). What is still more remarkable this $20,200 paid for all public school facilities, all police protection, sanitary service, including street cleaning and garbage collection.

"While individual tax figures vary," he adds, "a similar comparison could be shown by practically every taxpayer in this country, whether he pays much or little to his national government."

Although Mr. Robertson obviously is in a high surtax bracket, and thus pays a relatively larger federal income tax than the average citizen, his remarks nevertheless call timely attention to the degree to which the national government has pre-empted the field of taxation.

As Mr. Robertson points out, local government units must carry the load of personal services that are essential to the health and welfare of the citizen. Yet the federal government increasingly is skimming off the cream of taxation. That is the basic reason for the financial plight of cities and local units, and to a somewhat lesser degree, of the states. They must do the work, but they are not getting the money.

WHEAT'S UPS AND DOWNS

The erratic course of wheat future prices on the Chicago and other grain exchanges is a reflection of the pattern of thinking on the probabilities of the months ahead. The price of March wheat shot up to more than $3 a bushel, the highest quotation in 30 years, at Chicago as reports piled up of damage to the winter wheat in Europe by the severe winter, and international relations seemed to go from bad to worse.

This was followed by a decline in quotations that coincided with a more realistic appraisal of world-wide events and rather widespread predictions that there can be no wheat shortage unless there is an unforeseen crop failure in the United States.

But nobody expects wheat prices to decline to the levels of a year ago, which were 100 per cent higher than figures of the years immediately preceding the war. Wheat will remain at high levels until there is a world surplus, and that is not in sight.

If another bumper crop is harvested, wheat farmers of the United States will receive near-record prices for it this year. And the general level of prosperity will parallel the prosperity of the farmers. It should also be pointed out that it would be a tradition-shattering development if there were a general decline in prices of other commodities and products while the price of wheat remains high.

WHAT "BIPARTISAN" POLICY?

If the President is in earnest in his oft-repeated promise of "co-operation" with the Republicans, there is only one line he can take with his slick protégé, Sullivan; that is to muzzle him promptly, repudiate him publicly, and quickly ease him out of any further responsibility in national Democratic affairs.

Anything less will indicate that the President himself is not playing the game on the line; that he, too, wants "unity" as a public policy, but is eager to play partisan politics under the table.

Senator Vandenberg did not entirely remove himself from the spot on which he was put. There has been much restlessness among groups of Republicans over agreeing to the "bipartisan" program insisted upon by the Senator. Already this policy has resulted in Republican withdrawal from many convictions which are dying hard in the minds of subordinate party members.

Sullivan addressed Senator Vandenberg as "the authorized spokesman for the Republican party in matters of foreign policy." To this Senator Vandenberg took vigorous exception. He said:

"I never have even pretended to speak for my party in my foreign policy activities. . . . This bipartisan foreign policy has been confined to relatively narrow limits. It has applied to the United Nations. It has applied to peace treaties in Europe. It has applied to nothing else."

Unfortunately, Senator Vandenberg's understanding, or recollection, of his record does not entirely agree with the impression of many other Republicans.

Immediately after last November's election, Senator Vandenberg startled his party by assuring foreign diplomats that the Republican Party would support the then-existing foreign policy. It certainly was assumed by many that he was speaking for his party, and committing it to a line of approach not unanimously approved within the ranks.

Many Republicans had been strongly critical of much of the U. N. work, and felt that it ought to be overhauled and revised. They had said so vigorously during the campaign. For that matter, Senator Vandenberg himself had freely criticized the lack of the principle of justice in U. N. affairs, the abuse of the veto, and the tendency of Anglo-American members to surrender to high-pressure Russian demands.

Moreover, the "bipartisan" touch has gone much further than the Senator appeared to believe. It has, for example, forced the Republican party to withdraw from its position on the tariff, on the argument that the Trade Agreements are a useful adjunct to the Administration in some of its transactions. In the Senate, at least, Senator Vandenberg has worked for what is substantially a bipartisan approach on the budget—which means, in effect, that the budget is not to be trimmed beyond whatever "water" may have been included by the President for trading purposes. Likewise he has sought a bipartisan agreement not to touch military appropriation requests—or even to examine them critically to see whether they are "loaded" with waste; in contrast to the House's strongly critical inspection.

For that matter, under his leadership the Republicans in the Senate took a bipartisan position on an appointment which was, in many ways, one of the most fundamentally important and revolutionary ever made by an American President—that of putting a professional military man and war commander in the position of Secretary of State.

But in its spot putting, the Sullivan letter turned the klieg-lights on still another phase of the matter.

Much has been said and written about the "bipartisan foreign policy." No one can read of the current incident and fail to ask, sooner or later, "just what is that policy?"

This phrase, in the slang expression, is packed with dynamite. Because no one knows what the policy is that is supposed to have bipartisan support!

Only a few weeks ago, when the policy was one of Russian appeasement, this was alleged to be bipartisan. Now that the policy is one of militarizing America to fight Russian Communism, it is still bipartisan. The old policy is dead; there is a new one, not worked out by Republicans but handed to them on high from the White House (Senator Vandenberg's statement says he knew nothing of it until it had been decided on) and yet this "pig in a poke" is still a bipartisan policy!

With regard to aid to Greece and Turkey, what is in mind? What is going to be done? No two people agree. One says that it is a declaration of war against Russia, another that it is the only road to peace. One says we are merely lending money; yet the Army already has announced its plans for training and equipping large units in both lands, apparently to be staffed with American officers and aided by American soldiers.

How much is involved, in the way of loans? Again no one knows. On the face of it, the amounts now discussed are only the first down payment. The two nations will need far more, in the long run; and if we are to move in there, we will presently have to move in to many other weak countries as well. But how many and how much? No one knows.

Now, a further question becomes very much to the point: How can there be support of any policy—one party support or bipartisan support—when no one knows what the policy is or where it leads?

The answer, of course, is that you can't be in favor of something unless you know what it is.

The Sullivan episode is a cloud with a silver lining. It has thrown an unhappy scare into some distinguished Washington leaders, it is true. But if it drags into the open the forgotten questions of what the present national policy really is, and whether the Republican Party really wants to support it, then it will have done a most valuable service.

Inside Your Congress

Notes From Abroad

—by—

SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL
"The Gentleman from Indiana"

Belgium: The New York Times reports that all the little business men in Belgium locked up their shops on March 10th in protest against rationing, price fixing, taxes, and the paper work imposed upon them by the state. All grocery stores, drug stores, butcher shops, gas stations, motion picture houses, etc., were shut tight. Just fed up with socialism, communism, fascism, welfare workers, and do-gooders doing them harm.

It might be that our business men will get mad enough someday to take out the old "Don't Tread on Me" rattlesnake flag of the American Revolution and do likewise in this "Sweet Land of Liberty."

Hungary: The Hungarian "dollar" called pengo, has completely disappeared from circulation, except possibly to paper the kitchen. It is as worthless as Confederate money. They are trying to inspire public confidence in a new "dollar" called "gulder."

The main reason their money became worthless was that they were compelled to send so much of their real wealth out of the country, in reparations to Russia. The purchasing power of wages went to zero. Just another illustration of the fact that governments can't make people rich by putting red ink on green paper. You can't print a Jersey cow! or a loaf of bread!

China: It now takes 3,350 Chinese dollars to buy one American dollar; and, in the black money market, it takes 18,000. Back in 1935, it took only 800 American paper dollars to buy one gold dollar. "Not worth a continental!" In 1935, debtors chased their creditors (!) down the street trying to pay off their debts with 800 to 1 money.

France: A writer in La Tribune Economique says: "Instead of investing in government securities, those who save today choose real values, such as gold, foreign exchange or property."

England: The Attlee government has shut off newsprint to newspapers. There goes freedom of the press! But even the Socialist papers howl about it. Here are a few samples: "The mechanism for the total destruction of freedom is complete." "The Parliamentary basis is going fast." "Thousands of Germans have been sentenced for submitting to state acts of compulsion when they had far less means of resisting than the British people have today."

Big-government—the curse of the world! But the Britishers voted for it. They trusted the politicians who told them, "Pay no heed to the noise you are voting to put around your necks! We have no intention of springing the trap!" Now, while the noise is tightening, one of these sure-of-themselves professors, E. H. Carr, tells the Britishers "only larger and larger doses of socialization can save Britain" from this and that.

Another of their professors, Viner by name, discussing hoped-for credits from America and Canada says: "My proposal assumes that there will always be an adequate supply of would-be borrowers!"

The assumption is correct! Plenty of borrowers! As you write out your income tax check, you may want to ask Uncle Sam not to send your dough abroad except on the hard-boiled condition that it goes only to countries that are moving toward freedom and not toward slavery.

Russia: The Soviet representative on the International Commission for Human Rights doesn't fancy the clause "The right of life, personal liberty, property, prohibition of compulsory labor," etc. He wants this stricken out.

"The earning power of a farm is as decisive in determining value as on-the-spot appraisal by directors' committees. There have been predictions that we shall have great surpluses of food production this year. The result should be a sharp drop in food prices," said the Secretary of Banking.

J. C. Maschke, of Sellersville, president, and about 60 Bucks county bankers attended. C. S. Sienkiewicz, vice-president of the Philadelphia Federal Reserve Bank, also spoke briefly.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

Home In A Month

Washington, March 22.—The belief of the ablest men who either have participated closely followed the various national conferences since the signing of the United Nations in San Francisco, that the Moscow conference, momentous as it is, is not more than a month, who, in addition, know Secretary of State Marshall well, are of it.

conference, they insist, is not to drag on for three months at the Paris Conference. It is going to be prolonged if and its utility has become established as have some of the others. On the contrary, this meeting is going to make real progress in a month or it is going to adjourn. The basis of this conviction is the quality and character of the Marshall's thinking. It does not mean that he will be patient or more belligerent. It does not mean that he is easily exasperated or more easily exhausted. It does mean that he is intelligent, he is intelligent in the of the experience of those who preceded him.

When the war ended, the present Secretary of State has seen conference after conference prolonged and all reasonable length—and a very little. Just before the Washington last week, there were the most convincing demonstrations of the utter futility of conferring after all the arguments have been made, met and explained; after the positions have been explained and expounded; every reasonable compromise has been offered and every possible objection, short of full surrender in principle and abandonment of national dignity and honor, has been made.

It was the attack of Mr. Gromyko, Soviet representative in the Security Council, upon the American energy plan. After nearly a month of patient and untiring effort, which the Russians had been impervious to every American argument and had repulsed every attempt to move them toward agreement on anything, it was noted that Mr. Gromyko would not accept our plan. But the violence of the attack not only on the veto, as put forward by the Russian committee, but upon the whole as based on "vicious premises," his intimation that the Acheson-Lillenthal report itself was obtainable, and his sarcastic allusion that the United States was going to intervene in the internal affairs of other nations could hardly be to depress every thoughtful American to secure the sympathy and co-operation of Russia in the struggle toward permanent peace in a troubled world.

It is recognized that Mr. Gromyko is a free agent, is allowed no individual initiative as a representative of his country to negotiate or speak. Therefore, when he makes an address such as this, no question that he had implicit instructions from the heads of his government. Mr. Gromyko is not a mouthpiece, he is a mouthpiece, and speech was indisputable evidence that after long months of negotiation and effort we not only

Economical Remodeling Old Homes Can Be Modernized Inexpensively

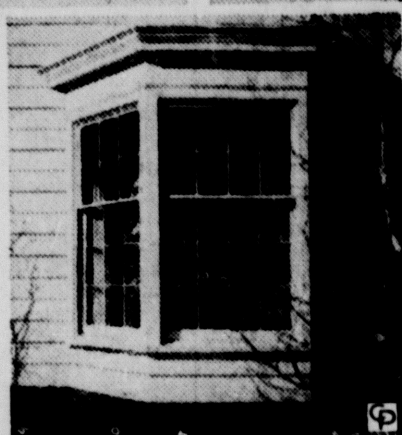

BEFORE

HERE IS a good example of how an old house, sound structurally, may be remodeled with economy as a major consideration. Note how the two old porches were removed. On the right, the roof line was dropped and a more attractive porch provided through a slight structural change. All of the ornamental woodwork, which was typical of a past era, was removed. Nothing dates a house more than this "gingerbread" work which was widely used previous to 1915. The two upstairs front windows were removed and one large modern window was installed. Shutters were added to give a modern appearance. The large lower front window was taken out and an attractive bay installed. Bay windows are very popular now in both new construction and remodeling. This type house is a "natural" to modernize because the lines are easy to change and the general appearance can be improved without too large an investment. (International) have not advanced an inch but actually have not held our own. We are now just a little behind the spot from which we started.

AFTER

THE Acheson-Lillenthal report might just as well not have been written; the Baruch committee might just as well not have existed; Senator Austin might just as well have stayed in the Senate—for all the progress we have made toward getting the Russians to co-operate in any effective way for international control of atomic energy in the interests of peace. A vast amount of time, labor and patience has been wasted. We have gotten nowhere, though we have tried with an earnestness, sincerity and unselfishness that should have allayed suspicion and dispelled distrust in those of understanding and good will.

WITH this experience so recently recorded, it would seem stupid to hold a prolonged conference in Moscow without definite assurance of real progress toward agreement on fundamentals. Also, it would seem that unless agreement in principle is reached after a month of daily contacts and negotiations, it would not be reached in two months or more, and that a prolonged conference will result merely in a repetition of the atomic energy negotiations in New York. Nobody wants that. If and when utility of further argument has become clear, there is no sense in General Marshall wasting further time and energy.

OF course, it is hoped that point will not be reached in this conference; but once he has convinced himself that there is no reasonable chance for agreement and that no self-respecting concession or compromise is possible, what the country would approve, it is contended, is for our Secretary of State, in effect, to say: "Well, gentlemen, after a full month without progress, and with no prospect of progress, we are withdrawing and going back to Washington. We

Sparkling Jelly Garnishes

A melon ball cutter, a sharp paring knife and one or two glasses of jelly from the grocers are the beginnings of many sparkling garnishes for the meat platter. Here, a roast of lamb is surrounded with sautéed pineapple slices and luxuriant watercress. On top of each piece of pineapple is a slice of red currant jelly with a small scoop of deep purple plum jelly in the center. It catches the eye and the appetite both!

will carry on from there; do the best we can, Good-by." And then come home. This, it is thought here, is exactly what he will do. There seems nothing to lose by this course. And there might be something gained. Negotiations can always be renewed when the outlook for agreement is better. The other course has been pursued without success. There is a limit.

Tells of Economy League's Interest in Legislation

sides in the State, with follow-up information regarding what, if any, districts had been added by the saving (or two-year reduction) clause. "That type of study the League has been able to carry out, and the findings are turned over to school boards or other interested groups. We have two men working now on this particular study in Bucks County," added the speaker. Another study mentioned which the League has made is that of third class city revenue increases, which findings have bearing on many boroughs also. "When more revenue is needed the League proceeds with the study of non-tax revenue, and makes the information available to others. There is, as you know, an unprecedented demand for new services in all communities. Everybody wants taxes cut, but at the same time wants a new stadium or something of that kind built. Yes, it is all of us who want taxes down, and all of us who want things which we never had before paid for out of taxes. But, surely, somewhere in between lies good judgment." One reason given for large tax balances at present in many municipalities is that those communities could not in recent years proceed with highway maintenance or improvements, and other work which ordinarily would have been on their calendar.

In a descriptive way, Mr. Tillinghast took up what he termed a "knotty problem", the state budget. He pointed out in giving some figures that the public assistance demand (financially) was cut in half in recent years, but is now increasing. "The state needs more money. It is in the same position as boroughs and cities."

The speaker touched on several bills of interest—such as veteran legislation, provision of salary boards in counties, etc. "We see there has been a tendency toward more and more centralization of government. Legislators have come to have more and more to say about local government. It reaches way down into the operation of counties, boroughs, cities and townships. But we learned in school that 'every force.' Some of the bills we have mentioned are 'draws in the wind.' They indicate the desire to bring responsibility back into boroughs and cities and counties—to govern themselves as they will."

Vocalist for the day was Mrs. Charles I. Bowen, her offerings being: "In My Garden", "In the Time of Roses" and "A Bowl of Roses". Mrs. Bowen was accompanied by Mrs. Marburg D. Weagley. Tea was served by Mrs. Elwood Goslin and Mrs. George LaRue.

The business session was directed by Mrs. David M. Sheerer, Jr., club president, with Mrs. Carl J. Foell in charge of records. Serving as tellers during balloting on membership were Mrs. Sheridan B. Metz and Mrs. C. L. Kline.

As chairman of the nominating committee, Mrs. Goslin presented names of the following as nominees: President, Mrs. Sheerer; vice president, Mrs. Leon J. H. Hutton; recording secretary, Mrs. Richard I. McKinney; corresponding secretary, Mrs. George W. Wright; treasurer, Mrs. Robert D. Brooks. Election will occur at the annual meeting, April 11th. Announcement was made by Mrs. Russell W. DeLong that the programs for May 16th and June 6th are being reversed, in order that a flower show may be conducted on May 16th. Mrs. Frank S. Weik called attention to the reorganization meeting of the Adult School on Monday evening at Bristol high school. The sum of $85 has been received from club members toward the Pennsylvania gift fund. Mrs. Earl H. Tomb informed.

Motion was passed to change the by-laws, making the term of office for club officials two years instead of three. The amendment was read by Mrs. Metzger, legislation chairman. President, Mrs. Sheerer, named Mrs. Charles Peet, Mrs. Earl H. Tomb, and Mrs. Thomas G. Hawkes, as auditors.

A county-wide creative writing contest was announced by Mrs. Richard T. Myers, entries to be sent to Mrs. Fred Watts by April 1st.

Lincoln Highway and Old York Road Clubs Dine

TREVOSE, Mar. 22.—When men of the Bucks County Lincoln Highway Kiwanis Club and Old York Road Kiwanis Club met on Tuesday evening at the Royal Gardens, near here, they discussed the subject of education. James Rogers, of the latter club, was the main speaker.

Mr. Rogers impressed all with the importance of all Kiwanians recognizing civic responsibilities in fields of community leadership, support of churches, and sponsorship of activities for young people.

Sixty-three attended, including invited guests. The short meeting of Lincoln Highway Club was conducted by H. A. Waldkovich, president, with the Rev. Robert Rodisch, Langhorne, offering prayer.

During the dinner group singing was led by Ray Lucht, vice-president of the Trenton Kiwanis Club, George Brendle, Harry J. Bodine, George H. Grover, of the Trenton Kiwanis Club. Reports on charter night activities planned for May 6 were made by E. Albert Checchia, Harris E. Murray and Walter S. Farley of the Bucks County Lincoln Highway committee, and Joseph Vandegrift, president of the Old York Road Kiwanis Club, who presided during the larger part of the evening.

A special meeting of the joint charter night committees was held following the main meeting, and tentative plans were discussed. Members of the charter night committee are: E. Albert Checchia, Walter S. Farley, Harris E. Murray, Edward R. Johnston, and Rev. Robert Rodisch, representing Bucks County Lincoln Club; Joseph B. Vandegrift, Stewart W. Greenleaf, James Rogers, C. Augustine, and G. Hobensack representing the Old York Road Club; Harry Bodine, George Brendle, Ray Lucht, George H. Grover and Edward M. LaMar representing the Trenton Club.

The membership committee of the Lincoln Highway Club will meet shortly at the call of the chairman, A. C. Millikin. Others on the membership committee are Paul O'Neill, Howard Gutgesell, Damon Johnson and Kent Dickinson.

The land base would represent an investment of $120,000 per cadet. Draemel said, while operation costs would amount to $26,610 per trainee during his three year enrollment.

The cost of operating the state nautical school, currently accommodating only 45 of 95 assigned cadets, was "entirely out of proportion to the return received either by the cadets themselves or the Commonwealth," the former admiral explained.

CROYDON

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jannette and children, Irene, Jane and Lorraine, of Washington, D. C., spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Cesar Crotogno.

Charles Stephen Nemeth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Nemeth, was christened on Sunday in the Church of the Sacred Heart, Philadelphia. Sponsors were Mr. and Mrs. James Nemeth, Philadelphia. After the christening a turkey dinner was served at the Nemeth home. Guests were from Philadelphia and Radley Park.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sperling and son David were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. John Cryer, Morrisville.

Corduroy Junior coat with back fullness.

JUST about the newest trend in coats, and not merely of this season but for several to come, is back fullness from the shoulders. The corduroy topper pictured today is a smart Spring and Summer version in Junior sizes—a full length wrap as useful as the "shortie" and in a pretty, pale pink to go with both pastels and dark colors.

Pink stars in the collections of New York designers of Junior fashions, all the way from playclothes to evening. An adorable pea jacket comes in pink fleecy wool, for instance, and an off-shoulder sundress is made of candy pink gingham with white eyelet ruffling. For after-dark, one designer shows a short melon-pink faille dress with short puff-pleated sleeves and little pleated puffs over the hips.

Today's Quiet Moment

By the Rev. I. L. Clark, Th. M. Pastor
First Baptist Church

Dear Lord, each day and each week we live we have the opportunity of making Thee known through our lips and lives. Help the Church of Jesus Christ to realize her world task of proclaiming His gospel among all nations. Grant that our night shall be so spent that we may be able to worship Thee in spirit and in truth tomorrow as we forsake not the assembling of ourselves together. May many precious souls be saved through faith in Jesus Christ. This we ask in His name. Amen.

EIGHT TEAMS POST FRANCHISES IN THE SUBURBAN LEAGUE

Applications Have Been Received From Three Other Teams to Join

MUST APPLY NOW

Any Other Teams Desiring To Join Circuit Should Act at Once

Eight teams have already posted their franchises in the Bristol Suburban League for the forthcoming season, according to the officials of the league. Applications have been received from three other teams and these will be investigated this week. Any other team wishing to apply for a place in the circuit is requested to get in touch with the league officers.

The eight hold-overs from last season are: St. Ann's, Hibernians, Badenhausen, American Legion of Bristol, Langhorne Legion, Harrison, Bristol Processing Company or the International Fur Workers Union, and Rohm and Haas. Teams from last season which have withdrawn from the loop are: Edgely, Fleetwings and Schutte-Koerting.

Applications have been received from the Third Ward Eagles, Fifth Ward Sporting Club, and the Bristol Democratic Club.

Officials are pondering over the fact whether to make a two division league this season. If it is possible, then the Langhorne Legion may go through with their plans to have a team in each division. There are so many players in the over 500 membership of the Soby Post that members there are considering plans to field two teams. This will be possible if the Bristol League has two divisions.

HIGH SCHOOL TEAM TO PLAY WINNERS

Planning to play several post-season games, the crack Bristol High School team will hold practice sessions during next week. Coach Don Fetterman has challenged the winners of the Bristol Basketball League to a game to be played Tuesday, April 1st, on the Bristol high floor.

Coach Fetterman also announced last night that the Bristol Junior Varsity team will play the Burlington American Social Club, of Burlington, this Tuesday night in the preliminary game on the local court. The Burlington team, composed of youths of 16 and 17 years of age, recently won the Youth League across the river and has won 18 straight games.

This coming Wednesday night, the Bristol High varsity team will play the preliminary to the Bristol League playoffs. Although complete arrangements have not been completed, it is most likely that the Bunnies' opponents will be the fast Bordentown Manual Training School.

The championship playoffs between Profy's and Rohm and Haas begin on the high school floor, Tuesday night.

Inter-County Hospital

Plan Is 10 Years Old

The Inter-County Hospitalization Plan marks its tenth anniversary on April 1st.

Started on that date in 1937, as a department of the Abington Memorial Hospital, it became incorporated as Abington Hospitalization Plan, Inc., in January, 1938, and its name changed to its present title in July, 1938.

The plan, which is non-profit, and is sponsored by hospitals in Bucks, Chester, Lancaster and Montgomery counties, now has an enrollment of 158,000 subscribers. 105,000 of these are enrolled through groups at their places of business, civic and service organizations, etc., while 53,000 are enrolled on a direct-payment basis.

Since the plan was started, it has paid 73,000 hospital bills, covering 672,000 days of care. Its payments to hospitals totaled $4,750,000. Benefits for its subscribers have been paid to hospitals in every state of the Union and in eleven foreign countries.

As of March 1st, hospital bills paid totaled 78.7% of income to date and the plan's expenses were 14.9% of
